BROKEN RECORD: Redskins coach Joe Gibbs paces the sidelines during Sunday's 27-3 loss to the Eagles in Philadelphia. A week after defeating the Dallas Cowboys, Washington's playoff hopes were all but dashed as the team's record fell to 3-6. Iraqi PM Promises Changes

Pledge to shake up Cabinet comes as violence kills 159

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The Shiite prime minister promised Sunday to reshuffle his Cabinet after rebuking lawmakers for disloyalty and blaming Sunni Muslims for the country's raging sectarian conflict, which claimed at least 159 more lives Sunday including 35 men blown apart as they waited to sign up for the police force.

Among the unusually high number of dead were 50 bodies found dumped behind a regional electrical company in Baqouba, 35 miles northeast of Baghdad, and 25 others found scattered throughout the capital.

Also Sunday, the country's Sunni defense minister challenged Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's contention that the U.S. military should quickly pull back into bases and let the Iraqi army take control of security countrywide.

In the coming Cabinet shake-up, key lawmakers from al-Maliki's Islamic Dawa Party said, Interior Minister Jawad al-Bolani was at the top of the list to lose his post because police and security forces were failing to rein in the unbridled sectarian killing that has reached civil war proportions in Baghdad and the center of the country.

SELF-HELP | Hey, I Picked Me Randy Wooten of Waldenburg, Ark., figured he'd get at least one vote in his bid for mayor of the town — even if it was just his own. He didn't. Now he has to decide whether to file a formal protest. Poinsett County results reported Wednesday showed incumbent William H. Wood with 18 votes, challenger Ronnie Chatman with 18 votes and Wooten with zero. "I had at least eight or nine people who said they voted for me," Wooten said. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

FOOD

Earl of Burrito Given His Due

Is a burrito a sandwich? Panera Bread said yes. But a Worcester, Mass., judge said no, ruling against Panera in its bid to prevent a Mexican restaurant from moving into the same shopping mall. Panera has a clause in its lease that prevents the shopping center from renting to another sandwich shop. Panera tried to invoke that clause to stop the opening of Qdoba Mexican Grill. But Superior Court Judge Jeffrey Locke cited Webster's Dictionary as well as testimony from a chef and a former high-ranking federal agriculture official in ruling that Qdoba's burritos and other offerings are not sandwiches. Got a License for That Super Soaker?

New Bedford, Mass., city councilors considered urging state legislators to ban pellet, BB and replica guns that aren't brightly colored and clearly fake. After a police officer last month shot and killed a man who had drawn a pellet gun, the council voted Thursday on a proposal that would serve as an advisory to the Legislature. The advisory's chief supporter, Brian Gomes, said he hoped future tragedies could be prevented through a ban on fake firearms that can confuse police. (AP)

Laugh Pack

They laughed so hard, their sides ached. And most of their joints did, too — but that may be the norm for some of the 600 senior citizens who participated in a collective laugh Saturday. The activity, intended to release pressure, was held at the Cultural Palace Square in Chongqing, China. The country is moving toward an older society with about 132 million senior citizens, and those figures are expected to continue to grow at an annual rate of 3.2 percent during the next 50 years. An absentee ballot was mailed with what may have been a rare stamp worth at least $200,000 — the famous Inverted Jenny — but the envelope is in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., box that, by law, can't be opened. County commissioner John Rodstrom found the stamp Tuesday while reviewing ballots. There was no name on the envelope, so the vote didn't count. But the small stamp had caught Rodstrom's eye, he said. The Navy is coming to the rescue of one of its mightiest veterans, joining the operation to free the World War II aircraft carrier USS Intrepid from deep Hudson River mud that has blocked efforts to move the ship to a dry dock for renovation. Bush to Meet With Iraq Study Team

White House leaders pledge new openness to fresh ideas on war

WASHINGTON | Responding to a humbling election, White House aides said Sunday that President Bush would welcome new ideas about the unpopular war in Iraq, even from Democrats he had branded as soft on terrorism.

As Bush planned to meet Monday with a key advisory group on the war, his advisers adopted a new tone, days after a dissatisfied public handed the White House a divided government.

"Full speed ahead" in Iraq, as Vice President Dick Cheney put it in the final days of the campaign, was replaced by repeated calls for a "fresh perspective" and an acknowledgment that "nobody can be happy" with the situation in Iraq.

Democrats, meanwhile, showed they were not all in accord on how to proceed in Iraq. Party leaders back a multifaceted approach to stabilizing the country, but lawmakers have not unified on when to bring troops home without risking more chaos.

Sen. Carl Levin of Michigan, the incoming chairman of the Armed Services Committee, urged that U.S. troops begin coming home in phases within four months to six months. He and Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware, the incoming chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, predicted many Republicans would support such a resolution now that the election is over.

Led by former Secretary of State James A. Baker III and former Democratic Rep. Lee Hamilton, the group expects by year's end to recommend a different course for peace and stability in Iraq.

The tone of the conversation changed when Democrats won control of the House and Senate in Tuesday's elections.

Before Election Day, Bush said the Democrats' goal was to get out of Iraq, not win in Iraq, and that if Democrats swept to power, the terrorists would triumph and America lose. BEN FELLER (AP)

Olmert in U.S. for Talks On Iran, Palestinians

Prime minister looks to make small moves on aid, U.S.-Israel ties

WASHINGTON | Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert has kicked off a five-day U.S. visit that aims to measure Washington's thinking on the tense nuclear standoff with Iran, Israeli-Palestinian relations and the state of U.S.-Israeli ties following the recent elections.

Iran's nuclear ambitions were likely to dominate Olmert's Sunday dinner with Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and at a Monday meeting with President Bush. But he also arrived with expectations that he could make small-scale moves on the Palestinian front, including the possibility of offering humanitarian aid to the Palestinian people.

While the U.S. has led international efforts to curb the Iranian nuclear program, Israelis are worried that U.S. policy might soften following the Democratic victories in congressional elections last week.

The fear is that with American public opinion turning against the invasion of Iraq, Bush would be less likely to take decisive action against Iran. AMY TIEBEL (AP)

BUILT FORD TOUGH: Gerald R. Ford has beaten a record held by Ronald Reagan — living longer than any other U.S. president. Ford, who turned 93 on July 14, became the longest-living president on Sunday by living to 93 years, 121 days.

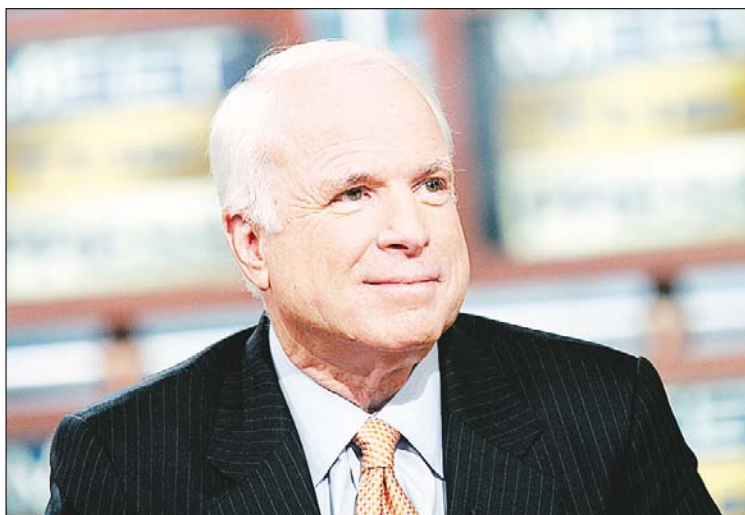

McCain Mulls '08 Presidential Run

Democratic Sen. Biden to seek office, Feingold decides against a bid WASHINGTON | Republican Sen. John McCain said Sunday he is taking the initial steps for a White House bid in 2008, setting up a committee that allows a potential candidate to raise money and travel the country to gauge support.

Democratic Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware reaffirmed his intention to seek his party's nomination, though an announcement about establishing an exploratory committee probably will not come until early next year.

The anticipated wide-open campaign — for the first time since the 1928 race, the field will not include a sitting president or vice president — lost one possible participant when

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said he has taken preliminary steps to run for president in 2008 during a taping of NBC's "Meet the Press" on Sunday in Washington.

Sen. Russ Feingold, D-Wis., decided against a long-shot run.

McCain, R-Ariz., said he is moving toward a 2008 bid by "doing things organizationally and legally" but will not make a final decision until early next year.

McCain, considered the front-runner for his party's presidential nomination, said he could create an exploratory committee as early as this week.

"The important thing is we will not make a decision until I sit down with my family, but we will be prepared," McCain said.

GOP officials last week said McCain would set up an exploratory committee and has opened a bank account for the committee. On Sunday, McCain characterized the moves as preliminary until he decides over the holidays about a possible bid. He unsuccessfully sought his party's nomination for president in 2000.

McCain appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" and Biden spoke on "This Week" on ABC on Sunday. HOPE YEN (AP)

NASA Tries to Regain Contact With Mars Craft

LOS ANGELES | NASA's Mars Global Surveyor has been out of contact with Earth for nearly a week and engineers tried Friday to re-establish communication with the craft, which may be showing its age after 10 years in space.

The space agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena lost contact with the probe for two days last week, then received a weak carrier signal with no data on Sunday. Since then, Surveyor has not confirmed receiving a command to point one of its transmitters to Earth.

The Global Surveyor was launched on Nov. 7, 1996, to systematically map Mars while orbiting the Red Planet. It has operated longer than the other Martian exploration craft. (AP)

Memorial Honors Flight 587 Victims

Relatives of passengers mark 5th anniversary of fatal N.Y. plane crash

NEW YORK | Hundreds of relatives and friends of victims of one of the nation's deadliest air accidents dedicated a memorial Sunday.

More than 700 people, many of them of Dominican heritage, gathered on a foggy beachfront in the borough of Queens to lay flowers and look up the names of 265 loved ones killed when American Airlines Flight 587 crashed five years ago. Weeping relatives placed roses, wreaths and photographs into cut-out spaces in the curved memorial wall facing the ocean.

"It's something that we can come to and pray," said Ana Lora, who placed a model car near the name of her car-collecting brother, Jose Francisco Lora.

The memorial marks years of efforts to create a tangible remembrance of the Nov. 12, 2001, crash, which killed all 260 people on board and another five in the quiet Queens neighborhood where the jet fell. The National Transportation Safety Board eventually determined that the tail of the Airbus A300 had fallen off, and the agency blamed pilot error, inadequate pilot training and overly sensitive rudder controls.

The disaster jarred a city still raw and fearful after the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center just two months earlier. The loss was also felt heavily in the Dominican Republic, where Flight 587 was bound from New York City.

Designed by a Dominican artist, the $9.2 million memorial is a curved wall inscribed with the names of the dead.

"Your ideas and your memories have been woven into it," Mayor Michael Bloomberg told those gathered Sunday. JENNIFER PELTZ (AP)

Report: Afghan Attacks on the Rise

Insurgent activity sharply jumps in '06, leaving 3,700 dead

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | Insurgent activity in Afghanistan has risen fourfold this year, and militants now launch more than 600 attacks a month, a rising wave of violence that has resulted in 3,700 deaths in 2006, a bleak new report released Sunday found.

In the volatile border area near Pakistan, more than 20 Taliban militants — and possibly as many as 60 — were killed during several days of clashes, officials said Sunday.

The new report said insurgents were launching more than 600 attacks a month as of the end of September, up from 300 a month at the end of March this year. The violence has killed more than 3,700 people this year, it said.

Afghanistan saw about 130 insurgent attacks a month last year, said the report by the Joint Coordination and Monitoring Board, a body of Afghan and international officials charged with overseeing the implementation of the Afghanistan Compact, a five-year reconstruction and development blueprint signed in February.

The report said that the rising drug trade in Afghanistan is fueling the insurgency in four volatile southern provinces. The slow pace of development is contributing to popular disaffection and ineffective implementation of the drug fight, it said.

Afghanistan's poppy crop, which is used to make heroin, increased by 59 percent in Afghanistan this past year.

Insurgents have launched a record number of roadside bombs and suicide attacks this year, and there have been clashes all year between insurgents and Afghan and NATO security forces.

In the east, Gen. Murad Ali, the deputy Afghan army commander for Paktika province, said 20 bodies were recovered from fighting in Bermel district in the last several days. In addition, he said, two trucks carrying Taliban fighters were destroyed by airstrikes or artillery fire, and officials estimated 40 fighters were killed in those strikes.

Chinese Riot Over Boy's Death

Hospital reportedly mobbed to protest child's medical care

BEIJING | About 2,000 people mobbed a hospital in southwest China where a young boy died after his grandfather was sent away to raise money for the child's treatment. At least 10 people were injured in fighting with police, a human rights organization said Sunday.

The boy, who was about 3 years old, became sick after inadvertently swallowing farm chemicals, but doctors at the facility in Sichuan province told his grandfather to raise more money for his treatment, the Hong Kong-based Information Center for Human Rights and Democracy said in a faxed statement.

When the grandfather returned to the Guang'an City No. 2 People's Hospital, the boy had died, the center said. It was not immediately clear if any effort was made to treat the child.

Residents demanded the hospital take responsibility and about 2,000 gathered there Friday and clashed with police, leaving at least 10 people injured, the rights group said. (AP)

Janjaweed Accused of Darfur Raids

CAIRO, EGYPT | Pro-government militiamen launched new attacks in Sudan's volatile Darfur region that may have killed at least a dozen people, international observers said Sunday.

A coalition of Darfur rebel groups known as the National Redemption Front said some 300 janjaweed militiamen on camels and horseback raided the West Darfur town of Sirba on Saturday, backed by 18 military vehicles.

"The attack resulted in 32 dead, 18 injured including women and children," the NRF said in a statement. The rebels said janjaweed militias and elements from the regular Sudanese army burned about 100 houses.

A U.N. official in Darfur, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the janjaweed had looted several villages and a refugee camp in the past few days, reportedly killing about 12 people. (AP)

DEEP RIFTS: Palestinian supporters of Islamic Jihad march in the West Bank Sunday to protest an Israeli offensive in Gaza.

Hamas Backs Bid for Talks

Endorsement of Arab League's call for peace conference signals shift

CAIRO, EGYPT | The Hamas-led Palestinian government agreed Sunday to an international peace conference with Israel after the Arab League — angered by Israel's military offensive in Gaza — voted to end a financial blockade on the Palestinians.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Zahar of Hamas endorsed a statement by Arab foreign ministers calling for the peace conference during a meeting in Cairo to respond to a U.S. veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning the Gaza offensive.

Zahar said the Palestinians had asked for the peace conference "in order to reach just and comprehensive solutions." The acceptance marked the first time the Hamas-led government has indicated it would consider making amends with the Jewish state.

The West cut off millions of dollars in international aid and tax revenues to the Palestinians after Hamas took power in March in an effort to pressure the Islamic militant group to moderate its anti-Israel ideology. The U.S., Europe and Israel are demanding Hamas recognize Israel and renounce violence.

Mark Regev, a spokesman for Israel's foreign ministry, said he was not aware of the conference proposal. But he said Hamas could not be a party to talks with Israel unless it met the international community's stipulations. "A multilateral conference doesn't make Hamas legitimate," Regev said.

Arab ministers also decided Sunday to end a financial blockade on the Palestinians to show their anger over the U.S. veto in the Security Council on Saturday.

The U.N. draft resolution would have condemned the Israeli offensive in Gaza that has killed more than 50 people recently and also demanded that Israeli troops pull out of the territory.

U.S. Ambassador John Bolton said the Arab-backed resolution was "biased against Israel and politically motivated." SALAH NASRAWI (AP)

McDonald's Firebombed in Oaxaca

OAXACA, MEXICO | Four masked youths tossed gasoline bombs at a McDonald's restaurant in the conflict-torn city of Oaxaca before dawn on Sunday, damaging the restaurant, police said.

Security personnel at the shopping center where the McDonald's is located were able to extinguish the blaze and there were no injuries, said state police director Manuel Moreno Rivas.

The restaurant is near a university where leftist protesters set up their headquarters last month after police drove them out of city's main plaza, which they had occupied since May in a bid to force the resignation of the Oaxaca state governor. Activists attacked a Burger

King restaurant in the same mall with gasoline bombs last week.

Leaders of the movement, known as the Oaxaca People's Assembly, denied their members were responsible for Sunday's attack.

McDonald's was at the center of controversy here in 2002, after protests forced the chain to abandon plans to open a franchise in Oaxaca's main square, saying it would hurt the city's cultural identity. (AP)

'Kidney Bazaar' Thrives in Pakistan

Poor resort to selling their organs in an effort to escape debt

JANDALA, PAKISTAN | Nassem Kausar has done it. So, she says, have her sister, six brothers, five sisters-in-law and two nephews.

Each has sold a kidney to a trade that has led Pakistan's media to dub the country a "kidney bazaar."

"We do this because of our poverty," said Kausar, who is in her 30s and lives with her family in Sultanpur Mor, a village in eastern Pakistan.

A kidney nets the donor $2,500, but sometimes less than half that amount, while recipients — some 2,000 a year — pay $6,000 to $12,000.

Critics blame an economic system that enmeshes farmers in chronic debt, leading them to resort to selling their kidneys, and say the trade should be banned. The government says it is taking action.

In the U.S., donating kidneys

SURGICAL SCARS: Farmers who sold their kidneys show their scars in Jandala, Pakistan. The government says it is working to better regulate the transplant market.

for money is banned. But the Belgium-based International Society of Nephrology has suggested expanding the pool of kidney donors by legalizing payment of about $40,000 to donors.

At least 20 transplant clinics exist in Pakistan, and 10 percent of the patients are foreigners, many from the Middle East and "one or two" from Europe, said Bakhsh Ali, an official at the Sindh Institute of Urology and Transplantation.

The institute, a free transplant clinic run jointly by the government and private organizations, has joined the call for banning the sale of kidneys.

The government has drafted legislation to "regulate" kidney transplants, monitor surgeries and "encourage family donors," said Health Ministry official Athar Saeed Dil, who has helped draft the proposed law.

The Sindh Institute's Ali said donors need constant check-ups to keep their blood pressure and sugar under control and protect the remaining kidney. In Jandala, another eastern village, kidney donors said they received no follow-up care.

"I pant. I cannot run. I cannot pick up heavy things," said Allah Yar, a 50-year-old farmer who has suffered poor health for seven years since selling a kidney. The father of six said he needed to pay off a $3,000 loan to his landlord, but got only about $1,200 for his kidney, meaning he remains deep in debt. SADAQAT JAN (AP)

Ugandan Rebel Leader Meets With U.N. Official

RI-KWANGBA, SUDAN | The U.N.'s top humanitarian official helicoptered to a jungle clearing on Sunday to meet with a Ugandan rebel leader accused of war crimes, but he failed to secure immediate freedom for women and children held captive by the insurgent group.

The U.N.'s Jan Egeland waited for two hours at the clearing in southern Sudan before meeting the Lord Resistance Army's leader, Joseph Kony.

Kony and Egeland exchanged a brief, formal handshake before speaking for 10 minutes. Egeland was seeking to secure the release of women and children enslaved by the group during its 20-year conflict with the Ugandan government.

But Kony denied that his forces are holding prisoners.

"We don't have any children," he said in a brief press conference in the clearing just across Sudan's border with Congo. "We only have combatants." (AP)

Gallaudet Seeks Feedback

University to include students and staff in choosing new leader

WASHINGTON | Gallaudet University is inviting faculty members, students, alumni and staff to offer feedback on the qualities they want in a new leader, following protests that led to the ouster of the incoming president, Jane K. Fernandes.

The board of trustees extended the invitation Saturday as the nation's premier school for the deaf begins to decide on an interim president and how to restart the presidential search process.

"The board was very attentive," said Alexander Zernovoj, president of the Gallaudet Graduate Students Association. "They seemed to have a genuine interest in what we were saying. We felt very positive. We felt we were heard."

Fernandes' appointment was revoked last month after weeks of protests that, at times, shut down the campus.

Protesters had complained Fernandes, Gallaudet's former provost, was an ineffective leader and that she was not the best person to address a lack of diversity, declining enrollments and low graduation rates.

They also said the board failed to consult with students and faculty members during the presidential search. (AP)

Takeover Helped by Consulting

Fenty spending about $100,000 to shape his plan for D.C. schools

WASHINGTON | Mayor-elect Adrian Fenty doesn't have all the specifics worked out for his plan to take over D.C.'s public schools.

He's now spending about $100,000 on consultants who will fine-tune his takeover proposal.

The consultants are supposed to produce a detailed report outlining improvements that would come if the school superintendent reported to the mayor instead of the nine-member school board.

That report is expected to be ready by the end of December.

Fenty is also talking with members of the D.C. Council about his proposals. He plans to take some members to New York to hear a presentation on Mayor Michael Bloomberg's school reforms.

Fenty campaigned on a platform focused on reforming the District's troubled schools and improving conditions for 58,000 students. (AP)

Youth Detained After Driving Bus

WASHINGTON | Authorities are investigating an incident in which a youth got into the driver's seat of a Metro-bus and drove off Saturday night.

Metro spokeswoman Lisa Farbstain said two groups of young people who were on the bus appeared to be fighting, prompting the driver to activate a silent alarm.

Farbstain said the driver then stopped the bus and got off, fearing for her safety. A youth got into the driver's seat and steered the vehicle until officers arrived, and the youth was detained. (AP)

Fenty Looks to Balance Job, Life

WASHINGTON | Adrian Fenty said Sunday he will work long days as mayor — but isn't going to let the job keep him away from his passions.

Fenty said that he gets up before 5:30 a.m., and, because he competes in marathons and is training for a triathlon, he runs every morning at 6 a.m. He's also a dad, and said he makes sure his sons are ready for school in the morning. Fenty said his day is already full of meetings, which continue until about 9:30 p.m.

Fenty said his job as mayor is to take the foundation built by Mayor Anthony Williams and make sure city agencies are "world class." (AP)

BACK IN THE SADDLE: Eagles running back Correll Buckhalter's 37-yard fumble recovery for a touchdown was his first NFL score since 2003. Buckhalter rushed for eight TDs with the Eagles in 2003 but missed the '04 and '05 seasons because he was injured.

Eagles Turn Redskins Back Around

Portis' status uncertain after leaving the game with a broken hand

REDSKINS | The Philadelphia Eagles' stale offense needed a couple tweaks to get going. A lucky break and some fresh ideas did the trick. Donovan McNabb threw an 84-yard touchdown pass to Donte' Stallworth, Sheldon Brown returned an interception 70 yards for a score and the Eagles snapped a three-game losing streak with a 27-3 victory over the Washington Redskins on Sunday. It was a costly loss for the Redskins, who lost Clinton Portis to a broken right hand in the first quarter. It wasn't immediately known how long Washington (3-6) would be without its star running back. Coach Joe Gibbs said Portis may require surgery. The Eagles (5-4) improved to 8-0 following a bye under Reid while earning their first win since beating Dallas 38-24 in Terrell Owens' return to Philadelphia on Oct. 8. McNabb completed 12 of 26 passes for 222 yards. Stallworth had six catches for 139 yards and Brian Westbrook ran for 113 yards. The Eagles got a favorable bounce to take a 17-0 lead in the second quarter. On third-and-15 from the Eagles 45, McNabb completed a 20-yard pass to Reggie Brown near the right sideline. Brown appeared to try to lateral the ball as he was being hit by Shawn Springs, but he actually fumbled. The ball popped straight into the arms of a streaking Correll Buckhalter, who caught it and sprinted 37 yards down the sideline for a touchdown.

JONATHAN NEWTON/TWP

Redskins RB T.J. Duckett, right, makes a catch while being hit by Dhani Jones.

"It was a hook-and-lateral all the way. I'm sticking to my story," Brown said with a smile before admitting he lost control of the ball. "I guess I didn't have it secure." The Redskins drove past mid-field on their first three possessions, but punted twice, and Nick Novak missed a 48-yard field goal. Brunell finished 16-of-31 for 132 yards and one interception. Philly's defense kept the Redskins out of the end zone in a solid all-around effort. Ladell Betts had 83 yards rushing filling in for the injured Portis. "We need to take a long, hard look at everything," Gibbs said. (AP)

Sunday's Stats

Rushing: WASHINGTON: Betts 20-83, Portis 2-25, Gardner 2-10, Randle El 2-23, Duckett 2-16, Brunell 1-(-1). PHILADELPHIA: Westbrook 22-113, Buckhalter 8-20, McNabb 4-12. Passing: WASHINGTON: Brunell 16-31-132, Randle El 0-1-0. PHILADELPHIA: McNabb 12-26-222. Receiving: WASHINGTON: Lloyd 2-47, Cooley 3-39, Sellers 2-18, Moss 3-17, Betts 4-8, Portis 1-6, Duckett 1-(-3). PHILADELPHIA: Stallworth 6-149, Brown 2-38, Westbrook 3-37, Smith 1-8. Missed Field Goals: WASHINGTON: Novak 48 (WR). PHILADELPHIA: None.

Grading GIBBS

→ Best Call: Proving T.J. Duckett still exists, the Redskins gave the running back two carries, and he picked up 16 yards. Duckett seems to be trying to prove he's worth a third-round pick. → Worst Call: Where to start? The Redskins made it into Philadelphia territory six times, but left with just three points. The offense just couldn't sustain drives. Just one lasted longer than eight plays, and it ended with a missed field goal. → Best Adjustment: The backup running backs played admirably. Ladell Betts finished with 20 carries for 83 yards and Duckett ran well on his two carries. But the Redskins have struggled in the past without Portis.

F Just when people begin to think they're back on track, the Redskins fail miserably.

Ravens QB returns to Tennessee to direct team to thrilling win

RAVENS | Steve McNair showed the Tennessee Titans what they gave up by not wanting to pay him.

It was an expensive lesson.

McNair threw his third touchdown to another ex-Titan, Derrick Mason, with 3:35 left Sunday, and his new team, the Ravens, rallied from a 26-7 deficit to beat the Titans 27-26 for their best start ever.

The Titans (2-7) had a last chance to send McNair back to Maryland a loser. But Trevor Pryce blocked a 43-yard field goal attempt by Rob Bironas with 33 seconds, allowing McNair to celebrate on the field where he had won so many games before.

Jets Send Patriots to Another Loss

FOOTBALL | Chad Pennington marched the New York Jets through the mist and tightened the AFC East race.

Relying on short gains and long drives on a rainy day, the Jets won 17-14 on Sunday, repelling a late comeback and ending the New England Patriots' streak of 57 games without consecutive losses.

After the Jets ended a seven-game losing streak to the Patriots, head coaches Eric Mangini and Bill Belichick exchanged another passing handshake — slightly more substantial than the fleeting, loose-handed greeting the two shared after the first meeting that ended in a win by New England.

Preseason favorites to win their fourth straight division title, the Patriots (6-3) lead the Jets (5-4) by just one game.

The Patriots played without both starting safeties — Rodney Harrison and Eugene Wilson. (AP)

O's, Yanks Make Deal For Wright

30-year-old pitcher reunited with his old coach in Baltimore

ORIOLES | Jaret Wright was traded by the New York Yankees to the Baltimore Orioles on Sunday for right-handed reliever Chris Britton.

As part of the deal, the Yankees will pay $4 million of Wright's $7 million salary next year. New York had until Sunday to opt out of Wright's contract, a move that also would have cost the Yankees a $4 million buyout.

million buyout.

Wright, a right-hander who turns 31 on Dec. 29, will be reunited with pitching coach Leo Mazzone. When the pair were with the Atlanta Braves in 2004, Wright went 15-8 with a 3.28 ERA.

After agreeing to a $21 million, three-year contract, Wright had a pair of disappointing seasons with the Yankees. He injured a shoulder early in the 2005 season and was 5-5 with a 6.08 ERA in 13 starts, then went 11-7 with a 4.49 ERA this year, not pitching more than 6 1-3 innings in any of his 27 starts.

Kevin Harvick won for the fifth time this year, sweeping the season at Phoenix. Jimmie Johnson, who finished second on Sunday, has a 63-point lead over Matt Kenseth.

Johnson Finishes 2nd to Stay in 1st

Leader plays it safe, not challenging Harvick for victory at Phoenix

AUTO RACING | Jimmie Johnson moved one step closer to his first NASCAR championship on Sunday, using yet another smooth run to leave Phoenix International Speedway with a firm hold of the points standings.

Johnson smartly settled for second place, racing winner Kevin Harvick just hard enough over a final three-lap sprint to the finish to maintain his track position and keep the Nextel Cup title within his reach.

He heads into next week's season finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway with a 63-point lead over Matt Kenseth, needing just one more trouble-free race to grab the title that has so cruelly eluded him the past two seasons. He needs to finish 12th or better to clinch the title.

Harvick, who won for the fifth time this year and swept the season at Phoenix, led 252 of the 312 laps and was out front for a series of late restarts. A short stoppage allowed both drivers to map out their final strategy, which called for Johnson to make a brief run at Harvick over the closing laps.

But Harvick twice held off any charge, and Johnson fell in line behind him as they crossed the finish line.

"Jimmie got a good run on me," Harvick said. "But I wasn't going to lose this race."

Denny Hamlin finished third, Jeff Gordon was fourth and Carl Edwards rounded out the top five.

Maryland Women Dominate GMU

WOMENS HOOPS | Top-ranked Maryland unfurled its national championship banner, then staged an impressive performance reminiscent of its play a year ago.

Kristi Toliver and Ashleigh Newman each scored 16 points, and the Terrapins rolled to a 99-43 rout of George Mason on Sunday.

Toliver had 10 points during a 22-0 run that put Maryland (2-0) up 43-15 in the first half. The margin swelled to 40 points with 13:34 left, and 50 with 7:14 to go.

Crystal Langhorne scored 14 points and Shay Doron and Christie Marrone had 12 apiece.

Maryland shot 66 percent in the first half and went 6-for-10 from 3-point range in building a 50-20 lead. The blowout was a sharp contrast to the Terrapins' opener an 80-76 struggle at Middle Tennessee.

Maryland returns all five starters from last season's championship squad. (AP)

Terps Walking With More Swagger

Confidence or a little cockiness? Whatever it is, Maryland has it

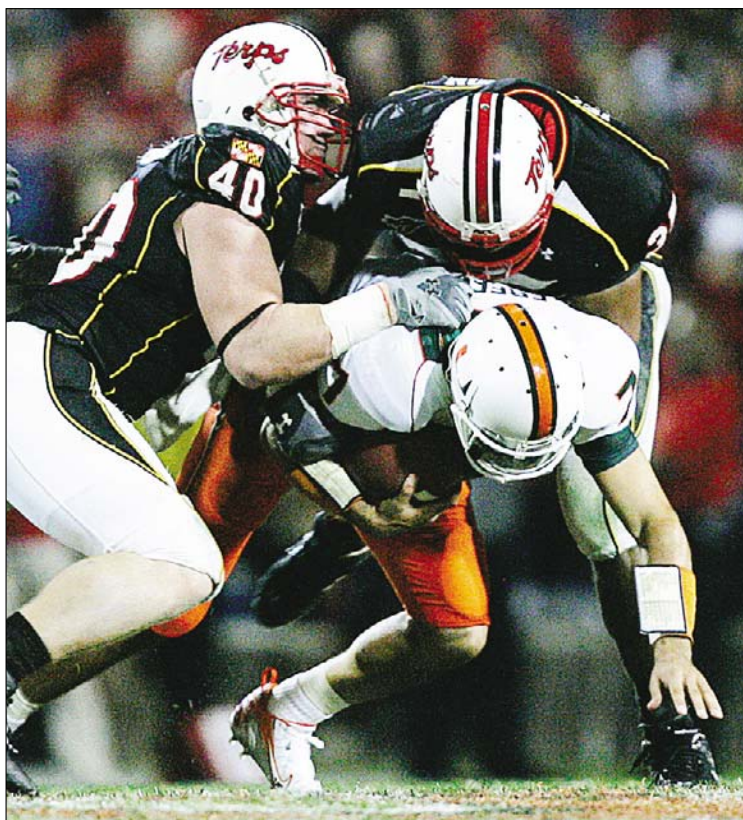

TERPS FOOTBALL | Coming off two straight losing seasons, the Maryland football team had no reason to believe it could win a close game against a quality opponent.

That was 2 ½ months ago. Now the Terrapins feel like they can't lose.

After winning four straight by a total of 12 points, Maryland was locked in another tight game Saturday against Miami. With the outcome hanging in the balance, coach Ralph Friedgen gathered his players to stress the significance of the situation.

"Here's a team that, when we started the year, had a confidence problem," Friedgen said. "So I'm out there at the end of the game telling them, 'Here's one of those moments.' And they go, 'Coach, don't worry about it. We got this covered.'"

"Now they're getting cocky,"

Friedgen said with a grin. "But they got it done. That's kind of a nice thing to see. You have success, and then you become confident."

Miami dominated the statistics, outgaining Maryland 320-258, holding the ball for nearly 15 more minutes and going 13-for-21 on third-down conversions. But the Hurricanes had a wide receiver drop a sure touchdown pass, watched a deflected pass turn into an interception, then lost their last chance to win when their punt returner lost a fumble with 74 seconds left.

"I don't know what to tell you. I'm living a good life," Friedgen said, laughing. "I don't know how else to explain it. It's miraculous. It really is. The ball is bouncing our way right now."

Two more weeks of lucky bounces, and Maryland (8-2, 5-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) will be headed to the ACC championship game. If they win at Boston College next week and at home against Wake Forest on Nov. 25, the Terps will be Atlantic Division champs. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Major Shake-Up In AP's Top 25

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Arkansas and Rutgers are on the rise. Florida and Southern California are practically even. And Ohio State and Michigan haven't budged from the top of the Associated Press Top 25.

After a wild week in which four top-10 teams lost, including three of the top five, the rankings had a major shake-up Sunday.

Except at the top, where No. 1 Ohio State and No. 2 Michigan held their places and set up a 1 vs. 2 matchup on Saturday for a spot in the national title game on Jan. 8.

Florida is No. 3, barely ahead of No. 4 USC.

No. 5 Arkansas moved up six spots and Notre Dame went up three spots to No. 6. The top 10 are rounded out by No. 7 Rutgers, No. 8 West Virginia, No. 9 LSU and No. 10 Louisville. With a 14-13 win over Miami, Maryland moved up to No. 21 in the rankings. (AP)

Studying the Antidepressant Effects of Sleep Deprivation

Sleep deprivation has rapid & brief antidepressant effects in some depressed people. NIMH is exploring how a drug that mimics the effects of sleep deprivation in the brain, may also bring about a rapid antidepressant response in people who are depressed. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. Study includes multiple overnight stays & free sleep evaluations to rule out sleep disorders. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-60 with depression who:

- Are free of other serious medical conditions
- Do not have any sleep disorders

Cubs Resign 3B Ramirez and Pitcher Wood to New Deals

Third baseman Aramis Ramirez agreed Sunday to a five-year contract with the Cubs worth $73 million and pitcher Kerry Wood got a one-year deal, both deciding to stay with Chicago. Ramirez set career highs last season for homers (38) and RBIs (119). Wood, the 1998 NL Rookie of the Year, has been bothered by arm problems throughout his career. His $1.75 million contract could be worth as much as $6 million with incentives. (AP)

Dynamo Takes MLS Cup in PKs

New England loses in final for the 2nd straight season, 4-3

SOCCER | Brian Ching scored the tying goal for Houston a little over a minute after New England's Taylor Twellman struck what appeared to be the game-winner in overtime, and the Dynamo prevailed 4-3 on penalty kicks Sunday to win the MLS Cup.

Faced with a must-goal in the fifth and final set of penalty kicks, Houston goalkeeper Pat Onstad blocked Jay Heaps' drive to the left side of the net to give the Dynamo a championship in its first year in Houston.

The loss was the third defeat in the league championship for the Revolution who lost 1-0 in overtime to Los Angeles last year. New England also made the final game and lost in 2002.

The game was the first MLS Cup final to be decided on penalty kicks — though, in the second overtime, the Revolution appeared just minutes away from victory.

In the 113th minute, Twellman hit a left-footer past sliding Dynamo defender Kelly Gray and just inside the far post.

But as Revolution fans were celebrating, Ching headed in the tying goal off a long cross from Brian Mullan.

Ching later converted the winning penalty kick in the fifth round, knocking the ball past New England's Matt Reis. He was chosen the game's most valuable player. (AP)

Personal Tech

Stephen Devine, of Hanover, Mass., uses the TracNet Internet system in his vehicle.

Wired for The Road

New technology turns a vehicle or boat into an Internet hot spot

MOBILITY | When Stephen Devine drove with his family from their home in Massachusetts to New York City, he spent two frustrating hours trying to find a place to park his 9-foot-high camper van, which won't fit in most garages.

In the end, his 17-year-old daughter found online a place for him to park — and she didn't even have to leave the van to do it.

Devine's van is equipped with TracNet, a system that allows passengers to access the Internet on a vehicle's video screens. Launched in September by Middletown, R.I.-based KVH Industries Inc., TracNet brings the Internet to the installed screens in a car, truck, RV or boat. It also turns the entire vehicle into a wireless hot spot, so passengers can use their laptops to go online.

KVH also makes TracVision, which provides satellite TV service in vehicles and boats; TracPhone, a satellite communications service for boats; and precision navigation and guidance systems for the military.

While TracNet is still very new, KVH spokesman Chris Watson said there has been interest from owners of recreational vehicles and boats. He also predicted the service would be a hit with car services.

But KVH believes the demand has the potential to be much wider. Watson cited research by J.D. Power and Associates, which found that more than half of full-size sport utility vehicles, 40 percent of luxury SUVs and 40 percent of minivans now come with video screens.

The current price is $1,995 for the automotive version of TracNet. The system operates on Verizon Wireless' high-speed network, which costs another $60 to $80 a month. There is also a $10 monthly charge for MSN TV, the service from Microsoft Corp. that brings the Internet to TV screens.

An MSN TV portal provides access to e-mail, instant messaging, chat rooms and other features. While Web sites outside of the portal are fully accessible, most are not formatted correctly for TV screens. Another limitation is the system's dependence on the Verizon network: Where there is no cell phone service, there won't be any Internet access either. SARAH KARUSH (AP)

MY, WHAT A BIG, BLURRY GUN YOU HAVE: Daniel Craig pulls out the heavy artillery to deal with critics of his James Bond.

Agent of Change

The new James Bond rolls the dice and wins big in 'Casino Royale'

FILM | Before a single frame of "Casino Royale" had been shot, actor Daniel Craig, the newest James Bond, was raked over the coals in the press.

Craig, 38, was stunned at the vitriolic reaction. After all, he'd been carefully chosen by "Casino's" filmmakers to reprise the character in an origins story based on Ian Fleming's first Bond novel. (The material was previously spoofed in a 1967 feature that starred Peter Sellers, David Niven and Woody Allen.) Craig comes to the gig with more than two decades of experience, including the recent studio projects "Munich" and "The Road to Perdition."

On the eve of the film's release, Craig is pleased with how his first outing as Agent 007 turned out. With positive buzz surrounding "Casino Royale," the 21st installment of the long-running franchise, he hopes to quash any remaining doubts about his suitability for the role.

As excited as he was to play Bond, Craig was initially uncertain about wanting to tackle the role. "Why come and fill somebody's shoes while we're waiting for the next person to come along?" he recalls thinking. "It wouldn't make any sense. The only way I could get involved is if we would be showing something different, showing a different interpretation."

"Kingdom of Heaven's" Eva Green plays Bond's leading lady, the beautiful Vesper Lynd. Jeffrey Wright plays Felix Leiter, Bond's ally in the CIA. Italian actor Giancarlo Giannini takes the role of Mathis, his contact in the British secret service. Caterina Murino plays Solange, the beautiful married woman who succumbs to Bond's charms.

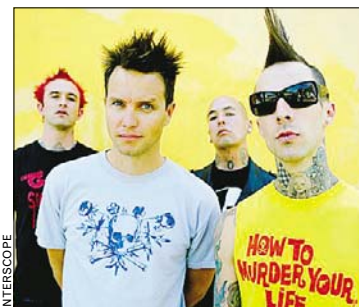

"Casino Royale" is chock-full of spectacular action sequences, exotic locations, beautiful women and fast cars. But "Casino Royale" is also grittier than many of the recent Bond installments, as 007 relies more on his skills than on gadgets to get the job done. Craig insisted on doing many of his stunts. The athletic actor buffed up further by lifting weights. He also trained extensively with weapons.

Craig says the most grueling stunt was an extensive chase sequence that takes Bond vertical at a construction site. "I strained a few muscles," he says with a shrug. "I wouldn't classify myself as a professional athlete in any way, but I understand now a little bit more about how professional athletes are constantly working through pain."

"Painkillers go a long way," he adds with a wink. ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

It All Adds Up

The goofball man-children in Blink-182 split up and became cranky men — at least to one another. Guitarist Tom Delonge went on to form the new wavey Angels & Airwaves, while bassist Mark Hoppus and drummer Travis Barker reteamed for Plus-44, whose debut CD, "When Your Heart Stops Beating," sounds an awful lot like the band they left behind. Opening is the XTC-like power-pop group the Matches.

Gangs of New York and Beyond

Cheap DVDs give a raw, inside look at street gang violence

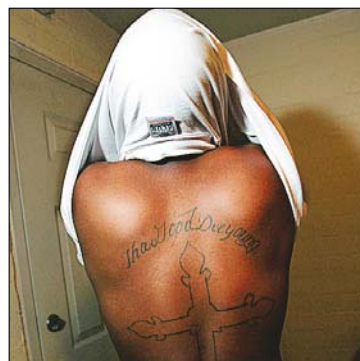

DVD | The camera lists and bobs in the dizzy, dancing camera style of MTV reality television before zooming in on a posse in purple clustered in a corner of an infamously violent housing project.

The footage is from a documentary called "Concrete Hell," which aims — like a wave of other straightto-DVD gang documentaries — to grant viewers intimate access to the gritty and violent underworld of America's street gangs.

"We're gangsters here," Redmann, a bushy-haired member of the Grape Street set of the Crips street gang, tells viewers. "We live, die and eat this."

You won't find "Concrete Hell" or other gang documentaries at the local Blockbuster. The $20 films are only for sale in swap meets, mom and pop record stores and Web sites such as streetgangs.com and gangstadvd.com.

Shot and edited using cheap equipment and pressed onto DVDs at home, "hood films" are the visual manifestation of gangsta rap: raw and sometimes violent snapshots of America's gang-plagued ghettos.

Formal sales figures are not available, since most DVDs are self-produced and distributed. But some filmmakers say they have sold thousands of copies.

STICK A PIN IN IT: Horror master Clive Barker is reviving one of his most popular characters, Pinhead. Barker is writing and producing a remake of the '80s gore flick "Hellraiser," though this time around he won't direct.

Total Hiro Worship

NBC's 'Heroes' has the TV season's first breakout character

TV | Hiro Nakamura, the gleeful comic book geek who uttered the coolest lines in TV this fall — "Save the cheerleader, save the world" — is captivating audiences in true superhero fashion. With his childlike awe, indefatigable joy and amusing vocabulary slip-ups, Hiro — played by the equally jolly Masi Oka on NBC's "Heroes" — is the first male character to break out this TV season.

The No. 1 new show among 18- to 49-year-olds, "Heroes" also ranks in the top 10 among all shows in that advertiser-coveted demographic.

A serial saga about people all over the world discovering they have superpowers and how this change affects them, the strength of the drama lies largely in its relatable characters. Hiro is the time- and space-bending 24-year-old office drone.

"Everything that is great about kids is inhabited in Hiro," said Oka, who finds the attention he is getting as overwhelming as Hiro finds his powers.

The character was an afterthought for creator Tim Kring, who added the Japanese-speaking Hiro after he showed his first draft of the pilot script to his wife, and she pointed out that he needed a character that embraced his powers with zeal.

"So I felt that we needed to come up with a character who, rather than approaching this as an affliction, approaches it as the best thing that ever happened to him," said Kring, who also created "Crossing Jordan."

Last week, viewers were exposed to a completely different Hiro who jumped in from the future speaking perfect English, wearing a long ponytail, carrying a sword and being oh-so-serious.

"Future Hiro is harder for me because my personality lends more to present-day Hiro rather than the ... sexy Hiro that is Future Hiro," Oka said.

"Part of why that character was invented was to carry the themes of the show," Kring said. "It's a classic Shakespearean idea to give the perceived fool the most important and insightful comment."

Firsthand Accounts

Anthony Shadid reports the effects of war on Iraq's people

BOOKS | As America struggles to decide what to do in Iraq, Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Anthony Shadid comes to D.C. to offer insights he gained by embedding himself with the Iraqi people from the days before the invasion through January 2005. “Night Draws Near” is a powerful, informative and award-winning account of that experience — and it provides no easy answers.

Should we partition Iraq?

I don't think most Iraqi Arabs want a partition. Drawing those borders would be very difficult. There's a question of how much violence it would stop. In southern Iraq, for instance, it's not sectarian. There's a free-for-all between militias.

For much more of our interview with Shadid, visit readexpress.com

Another idea is deploying more U.S. troops.

The U.S. presence remains a source of provocation. Pouring more into the same problem isn't necessarily going to fix the problem.

Was it difficult to get Iraqis to open up to you?

Trust is kind of the cornerstone of reporting — getting people to speak to you. It's something you build over time. The main characters in “Night Draws Near” were relationships I'd built over a year or two, even three.

IRAQ AT HOME: Shadid finds that war's human stories are often the most interesting.

How has the situation changed?

Well, it's not good. It's pretty grim. When I went back to Baghdad, in October, it was worse than I expected. The resilience that it used to have, you might argue that it's gone.

Is there any foundation for Iraq to build on?

There's a capacity for compromise among Iraqi leaders. The U.S. presence complicates that, but can compromise be worked out? It probably can. TIM FOLLOS (EXPRESS)

Resorts lure couples trying to have a baby with intimate retreats

When Lucinda Hughes heard she would have to drink sea moss elixir while vacationing in the Bahamas, she was certain it would make her sick. Sure enough, three months later, Hughes is very sick — every morning — and expecting her first baby in April.

She got pregnant after she and her husband went on a three-day Procreation Vacation at a resort on Grand Bahama Island.

It's part of a trend in which hotels around the world are luring couples who are trying to have a baby. Resorts are offering on-site sex doctors, romantic advice and exotic food and drink calculated to put lovers in the mood and hasten the pitter-patter of little feet.

Even some obstetricians are promoting the trend. Dr. Jason James of Miami said he often encourages couples trying to have a baby to sneak away for a few days, and he often sees it work.

"One of the most easy, therapeutic interventions is to recommend a vacation," James said. "I think the effect of stress on our physiology is truly underestimated."

Hughes and her husband, Kemry, went to the Westin at Our Lucaya Grand Bahama Island, where the three-night Procreation Vacation starts at $1,893. They lounged on the beach, swam in the pool, sipped pumpkin soup and enjoyed couple's massages. Hughes and her husband were also served an age-

There is a Procreation Ski Vacation in Jackson Hole, Wyo., where couples can snuggle by a toasty fire, enjoy a candlelit dinner for two in their room and take a dogsled trip to a nearby hot springs at the Teton Mountain Lodge.

For about $1,800, couples can book a conception cruise on the "Love Boat." They are taken to a romantic island on the luxury liner of Singapore sex guru Dr. Wei Siang Yu.

old Caribbean fertility concoction three times a day: sea moss, the Caribbean's version of Viagra, mixed with evaporated milk, sugar and spices. (She said it tasted like an almond smoothie.)

"My husband and I thought that we would go on the vacation and learn all these nice fertility secrets and we'd be practicing them for a number of months for them to work," said Hughes, 35, who conceived the day she got back from the trip. "We were stunned. There's definitely some truths to the foods and the elixirs."

The couple had been trying for only two months, since their wedding in May. But, like most couples, they have hectic schedules in Washington, where she is a freelance writer and he is a city employee. Cell phones are always ringing, day planners are jammed.

But the couple let go in the tranquil Bahamas and made time for luxuries often skipped at home, such as romantic dinners, she said.

The Birds and the Bees package at the Five Gables Inn & Spa on Maryland's Chesapeake Bay includes a two-night stay with a couple's massage, oysters and wine,

Now three months into the pregnancy, Lucinda and Kemry Hughes have picked out baby names: Kemry if it's a boy, and if it's a girl, Lucaya, for the resort that made it happen.

Sound of Democracy?

Radio

U.S.-funded station mixes music, news to attract Iranian youth

A listener tuning in to Radio Farda for the first time might mistake it for an eclectic pop music station as it broadcasts the danceable beats of artists such as Madonna, Shania Twain and even Britney Spears.

Stick around, however, and National Public Radio might come to mind, with a news anchor delivering reports about Iran's enrichment of uranium, Saddam Hussein's trial and the 100th birthday of composer Dmitri Shostakovich.

Since its launch in 2002, the U.S.-funded station — which beams a 24-hour mix of pop music and news into Iran — has been criticized for veering away from Cold War-era international broadcasts that primarily served up a steady diet of hard news. The reviews from Iranians are mixed, too.

“I don’t care where you go in the world; if you want to reach younger people, this is how you do it.”

BERT KLEINMAN, RADIO FARDA

“I don’t care about its news,” said Hoda Soleimani, an student at Tehran University. “It’s only good to enjoy its music.”

But those behind the mostly Persian-language station make no apologies for Radio Farda’s broader fare. And they’re seeking to increase the station’s $7 million budget as the Bush administration tries to present a friendlier view of America and pushes for Democracy in Iran.

It’s all about knowing your audience, said station consultant Bert Kleinman, who dubs Radio Farda’s approach “smart broadcasting.” In Iran, two-thirds of the population is believed to be under the age of 30, the demographic that holds the most hope for bringing about reform.

“I don’t care where you go in the world; if you want to reach younger people, this is how you do it,” Kleinman said.

From her office in Springfield,

Va., producer Sara Valinejad keeps the playlist fresh by monitoring the latest songs played on Los Angeles-based satellite video channels serving Iran and adding them to the mix.

Valinejad also sifts through hundreds of phone messages a day from callers in Iran expressing opinions about issues taboo in their country — nuclear weapons, Internet censorship and politics. The brief, interactive call-in feature, “What Do You Think,” airs once or twice an hour.

“If you say something about the government in Iran, you end up in prison,” said Valinejad, 31, who left Iran for the United States about 11 years ago. “But this show actually gives the message that you’re free, you can express yourself.”

Music and other features take up nearly three-fourths of a typical hour of programming. The idea is to hook listeners and keep them around for the news — Radio Farda’s most important mission, said officials at Radio Free Europe and Voice of America, which jointly operate the station.

That approach does not go far enough for some critics.

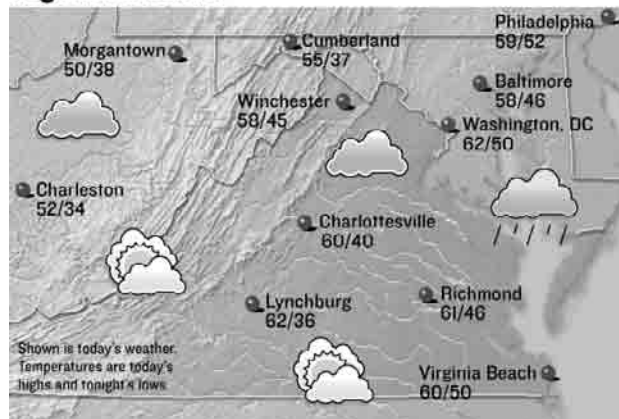

Kenneth R. Timmerman, executive director of the Bethesda, Md.-based Foundation for Democracy in Iran, wants Radio Farda shut down. He said the money should be used for more news — especially programming that educates Iranians about the corruption and brutality of their leaders.

“They’re not putting out the quantity or quality of news that would be helpful in encouraging democracy,” Timmerman said. BRIAN WESTLEY (AP)

FLEXIBLE STYLING: Bend Sport Couture isn't just for sports or the health club — the fluid, body-conscious garments can be worn pretty much anywhere.

Around the Bend

A new Parisian line blends going-out and working-out clothes

One of the cooler collections we spotted on our reconnaissance tours of new talent in Paris in recent weeks is Bend Sport Couture.

The brainchild of Los Angeles-born Susan Lu, Bend Sport Couture is a collection of chic basics with the distinctive twist one only gets in Paris, where the designer has lived for 18 years.

"I gave it this name because the collection is based around sport clothing," Lu said. "Bend is because its jerseys and flexible fabrics. But Bend Sport Couture also has a double meaning, in that the clothes can be worn for sports and out."

Body-conscious stretch tops, shiny black blousons, satin piped tops, snappy swimwear and horizontally striped hooded tops all looked great.

An American of Chinese origin, Lu cut her fashion teeth with Gianfranco Ferre while he was at Christian Dior and Martine Sitbon in the '90s, before spending 10 years as an art director and costume designer for movies and rock videos.

Lu divides her collection into three categories: Sport Couture (workout and swimwear), Cover Ups (oversized sweatshirts and dresses) and Soft Shells (jackets, parkas, track pants and skirts).

"These are made to be thrown on, very featherweight and satiny," said Lu.

The line is craftily composed of comfortable but lightweight materials like Polyamide Lycra or Tencel, which is a new fabric made of fibers from wood.

"The idea is that when the temperature is warm it keeps you cool, when hot it keeps you chilled. When you come out of sport, your muscles are pumping and you're hot, so you want something light that can protect you," Lu said as guests sipped champagne on the Hotel Amour's terrace.

Push Up at Own Risk

This writer never liked push-up pops, since the fun part tended to end up on the ground instead of in her mouth. The same problem plagues the POP BEAUTY POP-UP GLOW ($19, Sephora). While the watermelon scent and shimmer look were nice, it was freaking near impossible to move it without getting glow-stuff all over. One overzealous prod led to a near-complete crumble, leaving fingers smelling like Bubblicious the rest of the day.

Clothing

A Major Breakthrough

Once upon a time, an Austrian named Bernt Kuhlmann threw off the tyrannous chains of fashion. "No longer will I be weighed down by jackets!" he cried to the heavens. Thus he invented the XUBAZ ($50, xubaz.com), a four-pocketed scarf that's ostensibly much more convenient than a two-pocketed jacket. The Xubaz ("shoe-baz") comes with little "xues" that are, in effect, scarf garters — unassuming straps that secure the scarf to clothing so it doesn't dump your iPod, cell phone and passport all over the floor. Who's the Next Mr. Britney?

CELEBS | Like Reese Witherspoon, Britney Spears will also soon require a new male consort. It was much more difficult to come up with a list of potentials for Brit-Brit, however.

Men of her age are probably not looking to become fathers of two. And we're stuck with her inability to judge character, so we factored in the sort of man she might like, as well.

Anyway, here goes:

→ Ryan Phillippe: He's having publicist problems. But when this divorce mess is all over with, he's gonna need a new wife.

→ Chris Klein: Dumped by Katie Holmes and kind of a jerk, Chris could form a dysfunctional union with Britney that would end, less than a year later, in her third divorce.

→ Wilmer Valderrama: This Lindsay Lohan ex has an inexplicable way with the ladies.

Timberlake

He could be Britney's rebound guy.

→ Justin Timberlake: How long could this thing with Cameron Diaz last? He's the one that got away — maybe she could snag him again.

→ Jared Padalecki: Like Britney, he's from the South. He seems like a nice guy, someone who might help her settle down a bit. Is he ready for kids at age 24, however?

→ Benjamin McKenzie: He's also from the South. And he's 28!!! He's old! And after "The O.C." finally ends, he'll have plenty of time to stay home with Sean P. and Jayden J.

→ Ojani Noa: Jennifer Lopez's first husband — also a dancer!

Good, Bad, 'Ugly'

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday at washingtonpost.com to discuss Katie Couric's bad look, "Lost's" layoff and to give the skinny on "Grey's Anatomy."

Wow, Katie looked like a raccoon while giving election results on Tuesday night. What's the deal with the eyes?

I think it's a holdover from her "Today" days. I do wish someone would sign her up for one of those makeover shows. She looked so great at the Summer TV Press Tour. We had such high hopes for her on the "CBS Evening News," but she seems to have reverted back to her old "Today" ways of dressing and doing makeup and hair.

"Lost" runs for six weeks and then doesn't come back until February?! They claim there will be 16 weeks of new shows, but aren't they taking a huge risk by taking so long off?

Not so much as the risk of airing repeats, judging by last season's viewer anger and sagging ratings.

"Desperate Housewives" is much better than last year, as it is concentrating more on the main characters versus the kids. Agree?

Much, much better this season. "DH" got way off track last season and don't you wonder how ABC, and Marc Cherry, let that happen on one of their most important franchises?

Pookie, can you please use any influence you have to get rid of America Ferrera's whiny boyfriend on "Ugly Betty"? I'm very over that story line, and, really, the boy hasn't even hit puberty yet. They can use the airtime to show her awesome nephew some more.

You're out there — you're really out there! Yes the whiny boyfriend is annoying. Liked the guy in accounting at Mode much better.

There is something about Meredith's face on "Grey's Anatomy" that really bothers me, but I can't put my finger on. What is it?

Her face looks like it needs a hamburger shoved into it, followed by a milk shake.
